About College:

Bir Bikram Memorial College, Agartala (formerly Bir Bikram Evening College) established in 19th August 1969 and started its new journey 26 December, 2002 by shifting its establishment to a new location at College Tilla, in the premises of old Tripura University building with a new name Bir Bikram Memorial College to fulfill the need of the hour. With the change of its location, the college was converted to a co-education college from the same year. The present college campus is spread over an area of more than 6 acres with lush green fields bordered with exotic varieties of trees and winding lakes haunted by migratory birds in winter. The institution has been changing with the change of time - changed its location, name and time of learning and teaching and has been expanding qualitatively and quantitatively at a moderate rate without tuning its soul and spirit. The ultimate aim of the college is inclusive education - to impart higher education to all irrespective of caste, creed and gender inculcating highest human values and professionalism.

About Seminar:

The history of banking can be traced back to 2000 B.C which first began in Italy. In India, banking business started from the date back to the establishment of 'Bank of Hindustan' by English Agency house in Calcutta in 1770, which was under the direction of the Europeans.

The Bank of Calcutta began its banking business in the year June 1806. The government of India was not aware of the great need for banks in India till 1809, and in that year, a royal charter re-designated 'the Bank of Calcutta' as 'the Bank of Bengal'. It was the first joint stock bank of British India sponsored by the Government of Bengal. Two more presidency banks namely 'the Bank of Bombay' and 'the Bank of Madras' were established in April 1840 and July 1843.

In India, the Joint Stock Companies Act, 1850 was the first legislative enactment in the country, which enabled the corporate sector to enter into the banking business as per the provisions of this Act. After Presidency Bank, 'Allahabad Bank' was one of the oldest banks, established in the year 1865.

Swadeshi movement, which promoted Indian enterprises started many new banking institutions during the period of 1906 to 1913. The Bank of Bengal, the Bank of Bombay and the Bank of Madras referred to as Presidency Banks got merged into the Imperial Bank of India which came into existence on January 27, 1921 by the Imperial Bank of India Act, 1920. This Act, however, did not give the bank any power to issue currency notes and thus it was left without any control over currency of the country.

The Reserve Bank of India was established as a body corporate under the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Act, 1935 which came into effect on April 1, 1935, with a paid-up capital of Rs. 5 crores. The RBI was nationalized in 1948 after the independence. The RBI took over all the functions of the Imperial Bank of India.

The phases of banking in India may be re-captualise:

Phase-I: Since 1770 to 1969.

Phase-II: Nationalization to 1991, prior to Indian Banking Sector Reforms.

Phase-III: After 1991, Banking Sector Reforms.

There are numerous contemporary issues related to the banking in India viz., reforms and restructuring (mergers & acquisition) in banking sector, implementation of BASEL norms and IFRS, digitization including mobile banking, core banking operations, facilitation of e-commerce through electronic banking, issues relating to financial inclusion, governance and customer-related issues, formation of new international banks, transformation of micro finance institutions, management of non-performing assets etc. emphasizes to conduct the seminar.
